

Dear Families & Caregivers,

On Monday, Vermont recognized Indigenous Peoples Day. On this day and always I hope we can take a moment to acknowledge the rich histories of those who have been present on these unceded lands for generations. It is also a time to reflect on the pain of colonization, and think about whose stories we tell and what histories we learn. I am grateful for our educators who have been bringing this learning to our students across the system. If you would like to read a bit more about why we try to acknowledge the land we live on, check out this article.

I want to thank the Calais team for letting me sit in on their staff meeting this week. They spent some time building community and reflecting on their school-wide positive behavior systems, a critical component of our Safe and Healthy Schools focus.
