

Friday, April 3, 2020 Update

Dear U-32 Students,

Many of you are doing a great job of adjusting to this new world of on-line learning and some of you are struggling to make it all work. I want you to know that all of the Faculty and Staff at U-32 are working hard to adjust as well and we are trying to make it better. To make it better, we are going to take a break this next week. I have asked all the teachers to scale back classes and work next week to the bare minimum to maintain your learning. Teachers will be planning next week to start introducing new learning to you on Monday, April 13. We will take the feedback that you and your families have been giving and we will be designing new learning that is manageable. I need you to spend next week getting better organized and resting up. School is still in session, it's just not in the building.

Some great things to take a look at:

Shout out from our teachers who are missing you.

Chicken and Goat Therapy

We will be sending some more information next week about our expectations along with some resources to help you manage your time.

Stay well and stay safe,
Steven Dellinger-Pate

Dear U-32 families,

I won't send you a long message, instead I will send a video.

You received a message from the Superintendent yesterday that outlined our work next week. We need time to plan and we have heard from many of you that you need a break as well. Students will have a limited amount of school work next week as we take a deep breath and put together our teaching and learning that will take us through the end of the year.

Our newsletter link (be sure to subscribe and/or check back in on the newsletter as we will be updating it)

And finally, a link to the Chronicle here at U-32. Our student newspaper will be bringing you stories during this time to keep you informed.

Stay well and stay safe,
Steven Dellinger-Pate
